Despite Wilsonâ€™s claim that the United States fought for liberty and democracy, freedom of speech was reduced during the war. Sedition, or any speech or action that encourages rebellion, became a crime. Repression of Civil Liberties Socialists, who argued that workers had no stake in the war, won popular support in some states.

The United States began to withhold these goods to limit Japan's expansion. The United States also instituted a trade embargo against Japan. At first, Hideki Tojo, the Japanese prime minister, tried to keep the United States neutral. However, when a trade agreement with the United States failed, Tojo decided on a decisive military strike.
